SCANNERS
with ANDREW KOVACS

Exactly forty years after the release of the famous film by David Cronenberg, Funes proposes a conversation about Scanners. Thankfully we are still a long way from the dystopian foreshadowing of humanoid super-scanners, but not as far away as it would seem. If we consider for example the power of optical image recognition and its unprecedented expansion of data storage possibilities, those who have been able to recognize this power have found undisputed power!
We will discuss this and other aspects of scanners in the field of architecture with Andrew Kovacs, creator and curator of the archiveofaffinities.tumblr.com online collection.

MARIA FEDORCHENKO, from the AA School of Architecture, will also join the conversation as respondent.
